Energy Efficiency

OVERVIEW

The term energy efficiency refers to the use of less energy to perform a given task. Technically, it is the fraction of energy available from a given source that is used to accomplish a purpose—for example, to run a car. Higher efficiency equals less waste; lower efficiency equals more waste. Because energy costs money, increased efficiency can often be achieved at low cost or at a profit.

Most of the energy produced by burning fuels is lost because of low conversion, distribution, and end-use efficiencies. These three types of efficiency are described in detail below.

Conversion efficiency is the fraction of useful energy obtained when energy is converted from one form to another. An example of energy conversion is the use of heat to make mechanical motion or electricity. The conversion efficiency of a typical coal-fired electrical power plant—that is, the ratio of the energy in the coal burned to the ... VIEW FULL OVERVIEW

Duty free export to Ukraine.(Brief article)

Macedonian Business Monthly, May 1, 2009. Reading Level (Lexile):1400

Macedonian farming products will be exported to the vast Ukrainian market duty free in the future. This is part of the agreement that Deputy Prime Minister Zoran Stavreski and Ukrainian Deputy Economy Minister Valeriy Pyatnytskyi signed at the end of the 2-day business forum in Ohrid on end of May.

"We eliminated quotas for farming products and fully liberalized the conditions for exporting and importing farming products duty free. Considering how enormous the Ukrainian market is and the fact that Macedonia has certain comparative advantages, I expect Macedonian farmers to take advantage of this opportunity," Deputy Prime Minister Stavreski said.

Minister Pyatnytskyi said he was pleased with the cooperation this year, which went up year. In his view, the duty free import and export of farming products is only a begin economic cooperation.

Child Labor

OVERVIEW:

In quarries on the banks of the Samala River north of Guatemala City, Guatemala, seven-year-old Mario had to work long hours in the dust and the heat alongside his parents, hammering rocks into gravel for pay too low to buy food during the rainy season. In Oakland, California, Chinese immigrant Lisa Liu worked as an adult in a garment factory ten hours a day, six to seven days a week, earning less than the legal minimum wage, not allowed to use the bathroom except during her brief lunchtime, in pain from long hours spent bent over her work. In Malaysia seventeen-year-old Srihati worked from 4 a.m. to 7 p.m. every day without a vacation, washing the floors, walls, clothing, and cars and doing the... MORE >>

GENERAL TIPS

This advice will help you improve your results when using the Full Text search:

1. Browsing Current Events Issues And Topics

A good way to begin researching a topic that is new to you is to Browse Issues and Topics. From the home page, you can link to the some of the most commonly studied issues of current and international importance. Or you can click View All to display the total list of topics. Then simply click a topic and the system will show you search results as a Portal.

The Portal pages within Global Issues in Context bring together overview and background information on the topic, along with links to a variety of information sources for further study.
